Your price isn’t the only thing customers judge.

Customers never read a price on its own.

They compare it with everything around it.

A $499 monthly payment can feel different when you say it as a daily cost.

Even though the price hasn’t changed.

Show a real original price next to yours.

Customers will compare before they judge.

Offer three clear options and most people will pick one.

Give them five confusing ones and many will pick nothing at all.

A bonus people can picture often gets more excitement than a discount.

Lead with what they get.

Being open about your price keeps the sale.

Framing that hides it usually costs you the next one.

Your products, your people and your plan shape how your offer lands.

Save this before you price anything.

Not sure how your offer reads to a customer?

Comment

PRICE

and I’ll send you my free
Brand Clarity Assessment.

